About the University Center for Social and Urban Research (UCSUR)

UCSUR was established in 1972 to serve as a resource for researchers and educators interested in the basic and applied social and behavioral sciences. UCSUR promotes and coordinates interdisciplinary research focused on the social, economic, and health issues most relevant to our society. UCSUR carries out this mission by (1) providing research support infrastructure and training in the social and behavioral sciences to faculty throughout the University; (2) collecting and disseminating regional and national policy-relevant data to support faculty research and community development, and (3) conducting original research in a few focused areas, including urban impact analysis, survey methodology, and psychosocial aspects of aging. Additional information on the center is available online at: www.ucsur.pitt.edu

About the Program in Urban and Regional Analysis

UCSUR's Urban and Regional Analysis (URAP) Program analyzes major economic and demographic trends in the Pittsburgh region in national and international contexts. URAP brings together faculty, research staff, and graduate students to examine important urban and regional issues, with the results disseminated widely to state and regional policymakers, local officials, and community and economic development organizations. URAP maintains the Pittsburgh REMI Model, a comprehensive econometric model of the southwestern Pennsylvania economy used for economic impact analysis and forecasting for an 11-county region. The program also fosters the development of new methods of data collection and analysis. URAP research is published in scholarly journals and technical reports and has been an important element of UCSUR's commitment to providing regional economic development analysis to both the academic community and the Pittsburgh region. Through URAP's work, UCSUR is a research affiliate of the Pennsylvania State Data Center, the official source of demographic and economic data for the state.

Foreword: Population Trends in Allegheny County

The 2020 Decennial Census showed that the population of Allegheny County increased by 27,230 over the previous decade. Though a gain of only 2.2%, it was the first population gain the county had experienced — and the first time Allegheny County’s population gains had exceeded gains in the remainder of the Pittsburgh metropolitan statistical area (MSA) — since the 1950s. However, Census Bureau annual population estimates since 2020 show that the county’s population has resumed decreasing, declining by a cumulative 2.1% between 2020 and 2023. As of July 2023, Allegheny County’s population was estimated to be 1.22 million, roughly equal to the county’s population in 2010.

Allegheny County and the Remainder of the Pittsburgh MSA

* Pittsburgh MSA is defined here as the current eight-county definition of the MSA for all years.

Though Allegheny County’s population has returned to its 2010 level, communities within the county have been experiencing widely varying demographic trends. Over the decade between 2010 and 2020, individual municipalities have experienced population changes that range from over a 50% gain in Ohio Township to a decline of over 22% in West Elizabeth. Table 1 highlights Allegheny County municipalities that have experienced the largest population changes between 2010 and 2020.

The county and its municipalities are experiencing even more dramatic shifts in the characteristics of their populations. Despite nearly even total population levels, between 2010 and 2020, Allegheny County experienced an increase of over 47% in its resident Asian population and more than a 50% increase in its Hispanic or Latino population.

Population changes are not even across ages, and the county experienced a decline of over 4% in the population under age 18, while the population age 65 and over increased by over 17%.¹ Individual municipalities are experiencing ever wider shifts in subpopulations when broken down by age, race, and other dimensions.

The profiles compiled here are intended to be a reference document describing the broad demographic and economic change ongoing in Allegheny County and its component municipalities.

Data and Methodology

This report compiles data from multiple years of the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS), summarizing recent economic and demographic trends impacting southwestern Pennsylvania and municipalities of Allegheny County. Previous and related reports are available on the web page of the University Center for Social and Urban Research (UCSUR) at the University of Pittsburgh: www.ucsur.pitt.edu.

The ACS conducts surveys of residents nationwide throughout the year and produces annual updates of population characteristics for a broad range of socioeconomic topics. For geographic areas with populations greater than 65,000, the ACS produces annual updates based on a single year of data. For smaller geographic areas, the ACS produces estimates generated from data aggregated over five years of survey responses. Within Allegheny County, only the City of Pittsburgh is the only municipality with a large enough population to be included in one-year ACS data releases. For all other municipalities in Allegheny County, only five-year ACS estimates data is available. The data profiles compiled in this report compare ACS estimates for two five-year periods: 2008-2012 and 2018-2022.

The ACS is just one data source on population change. The Census Bureau is also the source for the decennial census, which is a complete enumeration of the nation's population every ten years. Between decennial years, the Census Bureau produces annual population estimates based on administrative and other data sources. Whereas the decennial census is a more definitive reference of population counts for a given area, it produces only a specific set of demographic data limited mostly to population counts by age, race, and gender. The ACS provides data across a much wider range of economic and demographic topics. Estimates produced by the American Community Survey are subject to sampling and non-sampling errors. The Decennial Census is the best reference for population counts for a specific geography in the United States. The Census Bureau advises that the ACS should principally be used to obtain population characteristics (percents, means, medians, and rates) rather than estimates of population counts.

The tables presented here cover the age, race, household types, school enrollment, recent geographic mobility, housing tenure (home ownership vs. rental occupancy), labor force status, educational attainment, commuting mode (journey to work), and poverty status for the residential population of each area. The specific ACS tables that were used to construct these profiles are itemized in the appendix of this report.

While the ACS data for the 2018-2022 period is the most recent five-year data available as of June 2024 when this report was produced, it nonetheless represents historical data collected between two and six years prior. Any trends identified by comparing the two periods can be interpreted as change over a ten-year period. Not all trends that can be identified in these profiles have necessarily continued, and some trends may have accelerated. These profiles are intended to be one data source to be used in conjunction with other data to assist those studying change across municipalities.

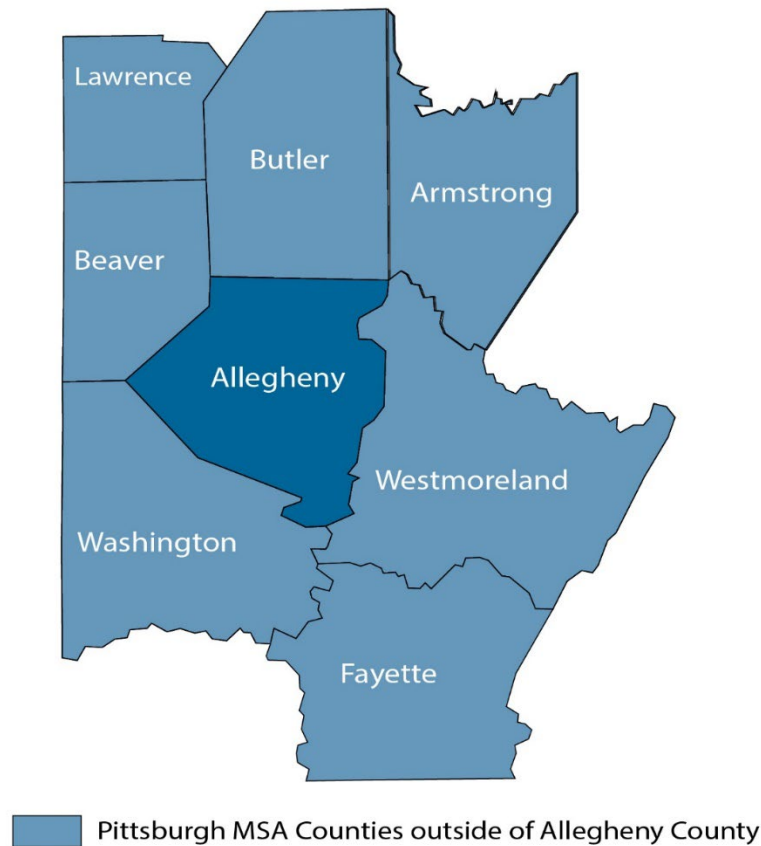

Additional technical documentation on the American Community Survey is available on the Census Bureau website at: <https://www.census.gov/programs-surveys/acs/technical-documentation/code-lists.html>. Data used to produce these profiles will be made available via the Western Pennsylvania Regional Data Center (WPRDC): <https://ucsur.pitt.edu/wprdc.php>. This report was prepared by Christopher Briem (cbriem@pitt.edu) of the Urban and Regional Analysis Program at the University of Pittsburgh's University Center for Social and Urban Research (UCSUR).

Regional Profiles

Included here are individual data profiles for 1) the United States and three subareas of southwestern Pennsylvania, including 2) the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA); 3) Allegheny County; and 4) the seven counties of the Pittsburgh MSA that are outside of Allegheny County.

Note the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Area (MSA) is currently defined as eight counties: Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Fayette, Lawrence, Washington, and Westmoreland counties in southwestern Pennsylvania. The Pittsburgh MSA was recently redefined in 2023 to include Lawrence County for the first time. Previously the Pittsburgh MSA was defined as seven counties. The data profile for the Pittsburgh MSA here reflects the current eight-county definition of the MSA in both time periods. Figure 2 shows the current definition of the Pittsburgh MSA.
